

THE BULL SHEET

Romney Stadium's premier belligerent game-day newsletter since 2009

Vol. 1, Issue 5
Nov 20, 2009

Robert Turbin officially turns to the Dark Side of The Force

Utah State's super sophomore running back Robert Turbin shocked do-gooders everywhere when he officially let the hate flow through him en route to turning to the Dark Side of The Force. Turbin, whose prowess on the football field has been nearly as high as his midi-chlorian count, looks to become even more powerful of a running back than anyone had ever imagined.

"We've seen Turb using Jedi-like speed, vision and reflexes all year," Offensive Coordinator Dave Baldwin said. "Not to mention a little extra push from the power of the force when you see him running over defenders. I can't imagine what it's going to be like when he unlocks all these jacked up things the Dark Side has to offer."

Turbin is confident that his change is for the best and is excited to make his grand debut in front of a national television audience, where most viewers will likely be hearing of him for the first time despite him tearing up the NCAA for an entire season now. "I've been trying to do the whole good-guy thing all season, and we're only 3-7," Turbin said. "It's time to step up everything, and if that means me being the apprentice to a Sith Lord, then I'll do what I have to do. We've got ESPN in the house, I've got plenty of anger built up, and mostly I'm just ready to strike Boise down with all my hatred."

Head coach Gary Andersen, who was reached via videoconference and was oddly shrouded in a black robe showing very little of his face, commented on the matter by simply saying, "The Dark Side of The Force is a pathway to many abilities some consider to be unnatural."

Turbin, who preemptively responded to any potential critics of his decision to use his deep knowledge of The Force to rack up rushing yards and touchdowns, said, "You don't know the power of the Dark Side."

Utah State

(3-7)

VS.

(10-0)

#6 Boise State

Bull Sheet scouting report

A Game Preview

Looking at this game on paper, one would think that the Aggies are just the next sacrificial lamb to be put in front of the Broncos on their way to another undefeated season. Utah State however has played to their competition this season, whether it's playing up or down. Best example of playing up is USU's three-point loss to Nevada. In Nevada's other five WAC games, they have won by an average of 30.2 points per game over their opponents. In reality though, the Aggies need a miracle to pull this upset. Also in reality is that at least once or twice a college football season, miracle victories happen along the lines of the kind of win that this would be for USU. There's no predicting miracles though. Boise brings to town a top-notch offense (No. 16 in the Nation) that finds ways to score no matter what defense is thrown their way. They also are sporting the nation's No. 12 ranked defense to throw against the Aggies' 20th ranked offense. For this game to keep from being a blowout, Turbin will need some giant holes to run through and Borel will need to be nearly flawless.

In the next "Bull Sheet" ...

- Bull Sheet aims at reaching a readership into double-digits after furious offseason marketing blitz.

- In-depth look as to why Boise State fans are always so eager to get the hell out of Boise for a weekend.

The Bull Sheet's season-end awards

Underdog of the Year - Kyle Gallagher - Critics say he's too small to play linebacker. He missed that memo. Never had much trouble kicking plenty of ass on defense and special teams. No. 4 tackler on team.

Running Theme of the Year - "Why they hell aren't they giving it to Turbin?" - Self-explanatory mostly. Still wondering why he had so few touches on those 3rd and short situations.

Hit of the Year - Chris Ulinski - That one where he REALLY lit that guy up. If you were there, you know exactly which hit it was. He's a kicker by the way.

Last Player You'd Want to Piss Off - Paul Igboeli - Ever seen Paul angry on the sidelines? Even being seven feet above the sideline with a railing in-between the stands and sideline, he still strikes fear.

Defensive Play of the Year - Bobby Wagner INT vs. La Tech - If you're jaw didn't drop when Wagner made that interception, you may no longer call yourself a football fan (assuming you previously did).

Offensive Play of the Year - Robert Turbin 35 yd. TD run vs. San Jose State - Turbin looked like he was cornered by defenders about six times during this play. Somehow still scored a TD.

Know Thy Enemy

#11 - Kellen Moore
So. - Quarterback

Let's see... What could we possibly do to pick apart Kellen Moore? For starters, he's the reigning WAC freshman of the year, so nothing to rag on him for there. He's currently the highest rated passer in the nation. He's No. 1 in touchdown passes too to go along with just three interceptions. His completion percentage is a measly 9th in the country, so statistically we've really got nothing.

So with Moore being one of the nation's best quarterbacks, not to mention just a sophomore this season, it would be grasping at straws to really have anything too brutal to say about him... Except that he is very obviously aesthetically challenged, or to put it plainly, he's pretty ugly. That's about all there is that could be said about him. Petty? Yes. Is it necessary to point out? Questionable. Do we care about such ethics? Hell no.

WRs Austin Pettis and Titus Young - Like Moore, there's no real criticism for the play of Pettis and Young. Both rank in the top-50 in the nation in receiving yards per game and total receiving yards. This season they have combined for 113 receptions, 1,487 yards and 23 touchdowns.

DBs Jeron Johnson and Kyle Wilson - Johnson is the Broncos leading tackler with 59 and top interception man with four on the season. Wilson, the WAC's preseason Defensive Player of the Year, has three interceptions this year, two returned for touchdowns.

The Bull-Sheet is an independent and satirical publication run and paid for by students of Utah State University. For the sake of parody, satire, and laughter, the writings in this newsletter may not be entirely factual, and in some cases blatantly untrue. This publication is not associated with or authorized by Intercollegiate Athletics, Utah State University, the Western Athletic Conference, or the NCAA. The thoughts expressed in this publication do not reflect those of the entities aforementioned. All logos and trademarks in this newsletter are the property of their respective owner(s).

If for any reason you are offended by what we write, enjoy your miserable life of hating the very world you live in. If you insist on complaining to us, please understand that we likely will not care that you were offended and will likely do nothing to make amends. Please send comments, complaints, suggestions, or paypal donations to the_refraction@hotmail.com (we feel no need for a whole new e-mail for this). Also visit us on Facebook. Download at www.usustats.com/bullsheet