In All Honesty: A game preview

Colorado State comes to the Spectrum doing exactly what everyone thought they would do. They have been beating the teams they should and losing to the teams they should be losing to. The Rams are led by a trio of juniors in Avila, Bejarano and Octeus. These three lead the team in nearly every statistical category. They can stretch the floor with their shooting and Bejarano and Octeus are deceptively quick.

This one will be close ladies and gents. However, when that happens, we give the edge to the home team. Aggies by four and we witness a little Spectrum Magic along the way.

Quickies: Insert "Joe De Ciman" Joke here

CSU's team motto is "Team Together." This is bad. Like... BYU bad. The Bangarang staff is looking for a cartoonist to assist in an upcoming series titled "The Fro and The Flat-top." Let us know if you would like to help.

-Seriously? "Team Together"?? "Team" is NOT a verb! That makes way not grammar sense.

"Change will not come if we wait for some other person, or if we wait for some other time." --Barack Obama

Many people have believed these words. And yes, the concept above has spurred many peo-ple into action to create a better world, and advance themselves. But, at its core, this concept is flawed; a glaring error echoing through its timeless words. We here at the Bangarang realized the error in our ways immediately upon discovering the existence of one "Enrico Bueno." He is the person we've been waiting for, even though we're not sure as to why we're waiting. He's also the time we've been waiting for, even though he's a person, and not time itself. Or is he? Maybe. All we know, all we can be sure of right now, is this: Enrico Bueno.

According to his bio on the CSU basketball webpage, The Enrico Bueno was born and raised in Brazil, playing for their national basketball program before getting recruited to the Rams. The Bangarang staff does not believe in such talk as this. No single country can claim the glory that is The Enrico Bueno. No single university can claim the honor that is his attendance. The Enrico Bueno exists for all of us. The Enrico Bueno lives in all of us. Enrico Bueno Enrico Bueno Enrico Bueno.

Also, he has an eye mole. Who does that? We'll tell you who. The Enrico Bueno does that.

Is The Enrico Bueno the greatest action hero of all time? Probably. Is he the most amazing plumber you will ever meet? Definately. Will he mow your lawn and keep your hedges trimmed by himself better than any team of 30 would? Absolutely. Is he the superlative chef, the champion luchador, the latin pop sensation? Yes. Yes he is. Is he the world's most delicious beverage, the ultimate snowboard halfpipe trick, and a dance so fierce and passionate that it requires both participants to have their legs amputated after performing it? Si. Is he also the power that grants those dancers the ability to regrow legs to dance again? You already know.

Will he see any time in this game without our undying support? No, and we shudder to think of

Coaches and team leaders in the CSU Ram community - please heed this message from our hearts to your ears: let Enrico Bueno live. Let him

Play.

We must throw our weight behind him. If any

We must throw our weight behind him. If any player on the court tonight is NOT The Enrico Bueno, let them know they can't live up to his majestic majesty. If Coach Eustachy doesn't dare to play The Enrico Bueno, let him know that his choice has made the world a less happy place. And if The Enrico Bueno didn't travel with their team, remember, The Enrico Bueno dwells in all of our hearts, the lobes of our lungs, parts of our livers, sometimes in the kidneys and, if you're the luckiest of lucky, your eye moles as well. Never let the future, the befallen or the world itself forget Buenomania and what it has done for all of us. From now to eternity to decree that The Enrico will never Bueno in vain.

Remember the Bueno. Remember Enrico. Enrico Bueno.

"THE BANT" - The "God must exist because He gave us these names" Edition

We have no words. Just none. This is, without fear of hyperbole, the most WTF-named roster in the history of college basketball. ThuTo describe it would simply dissolve the sanctity of just how balls-ridiculous these names are. s, in a move as bold as Larry Eustachy's forehead is large, we've decided to double up inductions for this issue only, and with no shame. You've more than earned it, Rams.

HONORABLE MENTIONS -

Daniel Beiarano (because every time we try we count a different number of syllables), Gerson Santo (because... Gerson? Just... Gerson? We're not even sure where to take this), Jon Octeus (we're not even close to making fun of this one. It's honestly awesome. Like, "Gladiator: The Animated Series" awesome)

BANT INDUCTEES -

Stanton Kidd - Really quick, anyone else picture this guy in a pinstripe button up with a bow tie and bowler hat? Anyone? It can't just be us. Also, it's impossible to say this name without the word "That" slapped right before it. It just slips off the tongue.

"Who's playing at forward?" "Ya know, That Stanton Kidd..." Classic.

Dantiel Daniels - This one is simple. Take the "t" from his name. That's right, without the t his name is Daniel Daniels. This guys is an Austin Powers movie in the flesh.

Joe De Ciman - Say it fast. Say it faster. Keep going. Yeah, we know. Judge us for having dirty minds, but the proof is in the back-of-jersey pudding.

WARNING - Before we get to the final inductee we must reassure you. Yes, this is his name. We are absolutely serious.

Enrico Bueno - So far, no question, the BANT inductee of the season. It goes like this. Take the Jamie Kennedy film "Malibu's Most Wanted" and substitute in a Southern california roadside Vato and that film immediately evolves into "Enrico Bueno." If you feel the need to be brave and throw up some "You're no bueno" cheers (or even get extra creative with some "yo soy malo" action) you go right ahead and do that.

The Boo Box - Because everyone deserves to be heckled.

Larry Eustachy- Former USU coach. We usually love to hate on the opposing team's coach, but this guy actually did quite a bit for Aggie basketball. Give him some love. Then give him the some riffing.

#31 J.J. Avila- Leads the team in ppg. Also leads the team in pictures of big (and we mean big) girls in their underwear on a twitter profile. @ NotLilJay. Seriously. Check it out.

#2 Daniel Bejarano- We estimate that 78% of his tweets are inspirational thoughts he stole straight off Pinterest.

#5 Jon Octeus- A communications major that wants to "do anything that has to do with money" for a career. We're not sure he understands what he's doing at college, or if he actually wants to have money, or just do something that has to do with it, but his name is almost a Spiderman villain so that's cool.

#10 Joe De Ciman-Okay, for our own good we probably shouldn't chant his last name at any point during the game. We tried for several hours to come up with any way to actually write a joke that wouldn't estrange our 'young mothers between 25-40' demographic. It didn't work. Screw it, just point out where he is all night. Ciman on the court. Ciman on the bench. Ciman everywhere.

#12 Carlton Hurst- We shouldn't have to say this, but we will. If this guy shoots free throws on our end of the floor, EVERYONE does the Carlton dance from Fresh Prince of Bel-Air.

#30 Josh Morgan- This guy will be our buddy for the night. He'll sit more than Professor X Compliment him about absolutely everything. Heaven knows he's not getting any confidence from the CSU coaching staff.
