In All Honesty: A game Preview

Yes, this team is completely different from last years. I wasn't kidding when I said the only returning player that saw time last year is Jazz Johnson. But the transfers they received and the new coaching staff are half decent. This will be a tough contest. Especially since our boys seem to be in a bit of funk right now. Our boys are pretty banged up and about 9 of them are fighting some sort of mild injury. But all it takes is for us to shake off this funk and whoop some Nevada butt. We need the game most importantly to stop our skid. It's a solid win over a good MW team, and it will be difficult to beat them in Reno.

Mark your Calendars!!!

UP NEXT: AIR FORCE: Tuesday Jan 21 @9pm. This game was looking to be a snooze fest. But they just handed us our worse loss of the season so far. We might need the full force of the HURD for this one. I think it was a fluke, but we need to show these Cadets what its really like to play on the road. It will be a late-night party!

The Camp Out

Last year hundreds of students camped out for this game. Many camped out two nights. Since the game was in late February it was no surprise that the campers woke up to 2 inches of snow. It only added to the hype-fuel when hundreds of students filed into the Spectrum after having spent up to 48 hours waiting outside the Spectrum. Our hats off to those die hards. There aren't very many fan bases with students willing to camp out in the snow for a game.

The Dirt

Who the heck are these guys?? Apart from Jazz Johnson most of these players either rode the bench or are transfers from other schools. Digging up dirt was difficult. Seeing as even Nevada hardly knows who these people are.

#14 Lindsey Drew– Missed all of last year with an Achilles Injury. Which is why we never saw him with any playing time. But is the longest staying player on the roster. Just another super senior in his 5th year.

#42 KJ Hymes– Picked the Mountain West pre-season Freshman of the Year. Let's all pick on the Rookie.

Nevada refuses to send last year's team to the Spectrum to further their poor sport reputation.

Anybody that was at the Nevada game last year might take a double take at their bench and wonder, is this really Nevada? Well, yes, they are. Everybody on that bench is new except for their star player Jazz Johnson. (Who won last year's Mountain West Sixth Man Award). So where did their team and coaching staff go? We have heard a couple of rumors but after doing our own detective work, we have reached our own conclusion as to why they sent their JV team to Logan this year.

We believe that they are still ashamed of throwing a tissy fit in the locker room hallway after last year's game. If you are not au courant with this event, then check out the Back Page and watch the videos from the QR codes. After seeing them completely lose their cool and then blame it on anyone and anything is plenty a motive to not want to return here. So, rumor has it, the entire coaching staff and starting lineup refused to return to Logan this year and will wait back home in Nevada and simply wait for the Aggies to return to Reno to enact their Revenge. Maybe they fear that glancing at our poor fire extinguisher would be enough to give them some PTSD?

Nevada keeps coming up with some BS explanation that all of last year's players were 5th year seniors or they took off for the NBA Draft. And that the coaching staff took off for greener pastures. But I think that story was completely made up to save face. They just don't want to admit it.

So what the heck happened last year?

Last year's game against Nevada was one of the biggest games of the decade. #12 Nevada came to town with the chance of having to share a Mountain West regular season title if they lost against the Aggies here in the Spectrum. And well, Nevada lost and shared the Mountain West regular season title with us. One of the biggest upsets in the Spectrum and paved the way for our first ever Mountain West Title. But, despite the surreal game played between two NCAA Tournament teams, it wasn't without its controversy. We are going to dive into it here in Spectrum Magic. So, buckle up, it's a wild ride.

Storming the Court

Check the QR code for a video of it. Nevada tried to blame their little hissy fit on us storming the court. After investigation of this incident it was concluded that the students storming the court had nothing to do with it. But more so, words directed at the Nevada staff during the hand shake line from one of our assistant coaches. Nevada coaches decided to be poor sports and not shake hands with our coaching staff so one of our assistants said something. Which I guess lead to Jordan Caroline completely losing his collective s****?

Jordan Caroline punches the fire extinguisher glass

You just have to watch these videos. Some show him punching the extinguisher. Others show the chaos in the hallways as the Nevada players tried to storm our locker room to start a fight. Law Enforcement had to control the poor losers and send them back to their rooms for a good old-fashioned time out. Of course, Nevada was ready to hold Jordan Caroline and crew blameless. Somehow it was all our fault? Naw, he threw a temper tantrum after the game. Which is understandable, emotions are running high and it was a huge loss. Just please take accountability for your own actions and don't blame others. Ok, Nevada?

While we are on the Topic

We are known as one of the loudest and craziest student sections in the nation. We will keep up the energy and make the spectrum one of the hardest places to play. We want teams to dread coming to the Spectrum. But there are rules for heckling in the spectrum. People on the front row are reminded before EVERY GAME. But its good that everyone is on board. 1. No cussing or Vulgar language. 2. No racist remarks 3. No Homophobic remarks

Breaking those rules can get you bounced from the spectrum by event services. I'm not telling you to be nice to them, but there are a few things to just avoid. I would rather us keep Mrs Mussleman a liar.

There are multiple ways to welcome them to Hell, but those are not some of them.

Baseless Tweets.....From the Coaches Wife?

I'm going to refrain from my personal opinions on this lady. Let's just say, you shouldn't throw stuff like this out. Especially if it isn't true. She is the wife of last year's head coach. And she decided to throw those lies out there. She deleted the first tweet later. But the internet never forgets.

 Danyelle Musselman
@DanyelleSargent

Mostly the one that referred to our players as n*****

Caden Didericksen @bigd_caden
Replying to @backthepack86 and 2 others

Which chant was used at the game that you found offensive?

She then continued to refine her statement until she admitted that only a single individual yelled it. Never was n***** chanted at that game.
